MHS RULES ON READABILITY

Writers and editors should follow the most recent edition of the Associated Press Stylebook, except as noted in this Style Guide.

Where there are questions about branding or trademarks, please see the individual brand's branding guide.

All writing should follow established plain language guidelines and practices in compliance with the Plain Writing Act of 2010.

The readability scores according to the Flesch-Kincaid Grade Level test and Flesch Reading Ease test should follow the below guidelines to meet plain language standards:

- Passive voice: 10% or less
- Reading ease: 50.0 or higher
- Grade level: 9.9 or lower

You can enable readability statistics in Microsoft Word. Once enabled, Word will display these readability scores once it finishes checking the spelling and grammar.

Learn more about plain language at www.plainlanguage.gov.

When creating new or updating existing content, you must use these style elements. You are not required to go back and update content for the sole purpose of aligning to these style elements.

MHS STYLE GUIDE

24/7

Should appear as above using numerals.

aboard

Aboard a ship, not on board, on-board, or onboard a ship.

academic degrees

Use an apostrophe for bachelor's degree, master's degree, etc. However, there is no possessive in Bachelor of Arts or Master of Science (also note initial cap of degree in this instance). It is redundant to use both a title and academic/medical degree.

For example: It is redundant to use Dr. John Jones, MD. Use either Dr. John Jones or John Jones, MD.

In general, to keep writing clear and unambiguous, avoid acronyms. If used, use acronyms sparingly. Establish any acronym used on first reference. Only begin using acronyms on subsequent references. There are some exceptions for highly recognizable acronyms. Punctuate acronyms according to AP style unless specified otherwise in this guide.

For example: TDD/TTY, MRI, HIV

active vs. passive voice

Always strive to write in the active voice.

active duty family member active duty service member addresses

Use the abbreviations Ave., Blvd., and St., and the 2-letter state postal abbreviation when listing addresses. Use periods with P.O. Box. Spell out street and state names in the text when used without a specific address.

For example:

- The parade began on Elm Street in New Haven, Connecticut.
- Naval Hospital Jacksonville is located at 2080 Child St., Jacksonville, FL.

affect vs. effect vs. impact

Affect as a verb means “to influence.” The game will affect the standings. Affect as a noun is occasionally used in psychology to describe an emotion, but there is no need for it in everyday language.

Effect as a verb means “to cause.” He will effect many changes in the company.

Effect as a noun means “result.” He miscalculated the effect of his actions.

Impact as a verb means “strike with a blow” or “to pack firmly together.” The wisdom tooth impacted the molar. Impact as a noun means “a collision.” The constant impact of the two gear mechanisms on each other eventually produced metal fatigue in several sprockets. Do not use impact as a verb in place of “to affect.” Do not use impact as a noun in place of “effect.”

ages

Always use numerals. When writing an age range, use an en dash (with no spaces) between the numbers. Do not use a hyphen or an em dash.

For example: Ages 11-14 and 15-17.

and/or

Do not use. Choose the most appropriate option for the situation or use “a or b or both” construct.

armed services or Armed Services

The armed services should always appear in the following order: U.S. Army, U.S. Navy, U.S. Air Force, U.S. Marine Corps, U.S. Coast Guard, Commissioned Corps of the U.S. Public Health Service, and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. See military services and uniformed services. Initial caps only in proper names.

For example: U.S. House of Representatives Armed Services Committee

all-inclusive

automatically enrolled

Never auto enrolled or auto-enrolled.

branded names and lowercase vs. uppercase

Refer to products, brands, etc., as they are branded, even in headlines or at the beginning of a sentence.

For example: eCorrespondence, milConnect, iPad, MHS GENESIS, TRICARE

breastfed, breastfeed

bullets

Bullets should align with inside hanging indents. Use solid round bullets for the first tier and solid square bullets for the second tier. Begin text at the next tab. There should be breaks before and after bulleted lists.

First example:

- This is an example of how to use bullets correctly in Word document drafts. Make certain your second line and subsequent lines are flush left with your first line as shown. Use a period if it is a complete sentence.

Second example:

- Flossing twice a day
- Brushing your teeth after every meal

Bulleted lists should be initial capped (first word only). Do not put periods after phrases or clauses—use periods after complete sentences only.

Note: It is OK if some items in a bulleted list have a period at the end and others do not.

bullets (sub)

Use solid square bullets for sub-bullets. Indent so the bullet marker is directly beneath the first letter of the primary bullet above it.

Example:

- This is how you use a first tier bullet. See above for more information.
 - This is an example of how to use sub-bullets correctly in Word document drafts.

campaign titles

Titles of campaigns appear in quotes.

For example: “Take Command.”

civilian titles

Do not use courtesy titles such as Mr., Mrs., Miss, or Ms. unless requested by the named person. Other formal titles such as Dr., Sen., or Gov. should be used where applicable. Do not use such titles on second reference unless necessary to differentiate two people with the same last name.

Always use serial comma, also known as Oxford comma. This is a deviation from AP style.

For example: “Learn about medical, pharmacy, and dental options.”

command-sponsored

Always hyphenate.

command sponsorship

Only hyphenate when used as a compound modifier.

compound words

Compounded modifiers that precede a noun are usually hyphenated.

For example: brand-name drug, TRICARE-eligible coverage.

state's legislature is clear: the Legislature, referring to a previously cited state legislature.

legislative titles

In the first reference, use Rep., Reps., Sen., or Sens. before one or more legislators' names in correspondence or text: Rep. Mary Smith, Sens. Jennifer Warner and Joseph Johnson. Drop legislative titles in the second reference unless it is a direct quotation. Spell out representative and senator in lowercase when they stand alone.

line breaks

Always leave at least two lines of text in a paragraph at the end of a page and carry at least two lines over to complete the paragraph on the next page.

Do not split shorter paragraphs across pages.

Always turn off hyphenation in design programs.

Avoid hyphenating words at the end of lines (for example, paragraphs, columns).

Avoid splitting dates or separating numbers from their nouns across two lines.

For example: Jan. 31, 2009, 30 days, 115%.

Avoid widows. A widow is typically a single word or the end of a hyphenated word at the end of a paragraph or column. A widow is poor typography because it leaves too much white space between the paragraph it ends and the start of the next paragraph. Fix by editing the paragraph or adjusting character spacing.

Avoid separating an introduction to a bulleted list from the bullets it is introducing. This applies particularly for non-newsletter publications.

Avoid using directionals (for example, listed above, shown to the right, outlined below). Instead use: the following list, the list provided, etc.

When possible, avoid splitting a bullet across a non-spread. Never split a phone number across two lines.

Avoid splitting a URL if it will fit on a single line. Flow it to the following line to avoid splitting. When it is necessary to split a long URL, split it at an intuitive point (at a forward slash) rather than in the middle of a word or term. URLs in electronic documents should hyperlink to meaningful text that describes the link.

- Do not hyperlink qualified URLs as www.google.com
- Hyperlink to meaningful text, such as search for anything, and not click here (where here is the hyperlink)
- This ensures your links are accessible for users of assistive technology.

Spell out percent in casual use (for example, “She has a zero percent chance of winning the game.”) Use decimals rather than fractions, and precede numbers less than 1% with a 0 (for example, 0.6%).

periods

Use a period after a complete sentence only. Do not use periods after sentence fragments in bulleted lists. One space follows the period. Note: It’s OK if some items in a bulleted list have periods at the end (because they are complete sentences) and others do not (because they are fragments).

publication titles

Render in italics. Verify that the publication title is accurate by consulting a hard copy or navigating to and opening an electronic copy.

punctuation

All punctuation marks, including parentheses, brackets, and superior reference figures, are set to match the typeface of the words they adjoin. A lightface dash is used after a run-in boldface sidehead followed by lightface matter. Lightface brackets, parentheses, or quotation marks shall be used when both boldface and lightface matter are enclosed.

For example:

Not military card.

United Concordia Companies, Inc. (United Concordia)

use vs. utilize

The difference between use and utilize can be found in the purpose for which you are employing something.

To use something means to employ it for its given purpose:

- Can I use your computer?
- Would you like to use my phone?

To utilize something is to turn it to a practical use. When you utilize something, you give it a new use that it may not originally have had.

- You can utilize Microsoft Word to draw pictures.
- We try to utilize as many of our existing tools as possible to create new innovations.

To choose between use and utilize, you need to assess whether the item you are referring to is usually employed in the manner to which you are attributing it. Here's an example with a pencil:

- You can use my pencil for the sketch if yours is blunt.
- The airport security confiscated her pencil because they were concerned it may be utilized as a weapon.

U.S.

Use in place of United States as a noun or an adjective, except in headlines. In headlines, use "US" without periods. Do not abbreviate in proper names where it is spelled out.

Note: Spell out United States when it appears with a quantifying number, for example, "50 United States and the District of Columbia."

US Family Health Plan (USFHP)

Always US Family Health Plan, never U.S. Family Health Plan or Uniformed Services Family Health Plan. US stands for "Uniformed Services."

U.S. territories

Following the first mention of "U.S. territories," list the territories in alphabetical order as follows: American Samoa, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands. Please adhere to the same usage rules for the acronyms entry in the Style section of this guide.

ABOUT THE MILITARY HEALTH SYSTEM

The Military Health System is America's largest and most complex health care system and the world's preeminent military health care delivery operation. We save lives on the battlefield, combat infectious disease around the world, and care for 9.6 million TRICARE beneficiaries, the nation's largest health benefit plan.

The MHS is more than just combat medicine. We are a system that provides health care delivery at home, medical education, public health, and innovative medical research and development.

While our system is complex, our goals are clear:

- Ensure America's active duty and reserve component personnel are healthy so they can complete their national security missions
- Ensure that all active and reserve medical personnel in uniform are trained and ready to provide medical care in support of operational forces around the world
- Provide a medical benefit to uniformed service members, retirees, and their families that is equal to the service and sacrifice they give to our country.

Our unique patient needs related to combat readiness and recovery means the MHS has experience and conducts research others will not. Readiness goals—not profit margins—drive how we provide care and conduct research. Because of this, many MHS treatments and discoveries have been adapted for use in the private sector.
